Often research on Mona Lisa stays impersonal, academic, "objective" as though a work of art is an archeological dig. In reality, an artwork is the creation of an artist who uses rich images to communicate rich content. Frequently overlooked is an artist-approach to interpretation, namely an effort to enter into the "subjective" mindset of the artist, through the images he (Leonardo) creates. Artist content arises as a narrative. Images tell a story. The artist communicates his message throughout a series of works that constitute a drama told in interlocking story boards, like a motion picture. The key to interpreting the work is unlocking that personal narration, that secret locked within the images of the artist throughout his oeuvre. So also with Leonardo...his works communicate his secret message in the dynamic unfolding of dramatic action. What is fascinating to witness is: a setting, a challenge, a confrontation, a clash, an aftermath, an outcome. In the case of Leonardo, his disarming secret is the smile. How to find it and what he communicates by it is the revelation of this involving, groundbreaking monograph. You will not find anything like it anywhere else.

By 2012, the Mona Lisa presence has been with us for 509 years (1503-2012)
