Art-Based Curriculum: Discovering the Alphabet with Imagination and Art Nancy Diehl, Kathi Kemper

Art-Based Curriculum introduces the young child to the alphabet using art projects, follow-up activities, books, and songs related to each alphabet letter. The book includes instructions, patterns, and photographs that make it easy for you to assemble each project. The project can be adjusted to the child's ability and developmental level. The possibilities are unlimited when the children use their creativity and imagination to make artwork their own. The authors have forty-three years of combined experience teaching the young child. They have developed this approach over the years, proven it in various settings, and have child-tested every project. The purpose of Art-Based Curriculum is to provide a resource for parents and teachers to explore art with children while introducing the alphabet.
